
Multi-Cultural College Resources

Internet Resources Which Deal with Multi-Cultural Issues in College Planning

National Action Council for Minorities in Engineering (NACME) www.nacme.org. NACME offers scholarships and internship opportunities for undergraduate and graduate-level engineering students who are African-American, Hispanic-American, or American Indian. A companion website, Guide Me NACME, www.guidmenacme.org, provides resources for high school age students.

Hispanic College Fund (www.hsf.net). The website provides information about the Hispanic College Fund and links to other websites that offer information on paying for college.

HBCU Connect (www.hbcuconnect.com). Created to promote awareness of and communication among historically black colleges and universities. The website is a resource for information on historically black schools, communication with alumni, and job networking.

Black Excel: The College Help Network (www.blackexcel.org). This website is a compilation of links to other websites which provide college-planning information for African-American students.

The Black Collegian (www.black-collegian.com). In addition to career planning and job search information, the website provides information on college life and articles by leading African-American writers.

Publications Which Deal with Multi-cultural Issues in College Choice

American's Black Colleges, J. Wilson Bowman

Historically Black Colleges and Universities, Black Achievers' Branch, YMCA-Boston

Daystar Guide to Colleges for African-American Students, Kaplan Books

The Multicultural Student's Guide to Colleges, Robert Mitchell